

COURTNEY HUGHES

Courtney Hughes grew up in Ohio and while attending college for journalism and business, she modeled and competed in beauty pageants at the local and national level including the Miss USA pageant. After graduating, she moved to Los Angeles to work as an on-air talent, producer, and writer for a radio show that was rated number one in its time slot. Courtney also was the entertainment reporter at three major market radio stations and interviewed celebrities such as Jeremy Piven, Kim Cattrall, Charlie Sheen, Denzel Washington and Eddie Murphy along with many others. She is an active volunteer at her three daughters' middle school and at the Make-A-Wish Foundation where she was chosen to escort a group of children to Disney World in Orlando.

Be. is a unique collection of resources for enriching and enhancing the talents of young artists in the disciplines of acting, modeling, dance, singing, beauty competitions, and word-of-mouth-marketing. Be. gives its clients a proven game plan in which the artist gets to work with top entertainment pros that will prepare them to be evaluated by agents, managers, and casting directors in San Jose and Hollywood. Be. is NOT in the market to sell classes, pictures, or other similar services, and is committed to refer its clients to the best companies in these fields at the lowest costs.

Each Be. office has state-of-the-art teleconferencing equipment designed to allow the best LA-based industry pros to view San Jose talent showcases without anyone flying anywhere! Our year end competition will allow the best artist's in each category to be signed to a major agency contract. Clients will be able to be certified in Word-of-Mouth-Marketeering and be eligible to be paid to promote products, entertainment, and web based marketing solutions.
